

FROM CANADA

The Lottery Octopus is Stretching Its Tentacles, Being Successfully Worked Through the Mails.

Our Postoffice Officials See No Cure for the Evil as There is No Law in the Dominion Under Which the Violators of Our Laws Can Be Gotten At To Be Given the Closest Attention.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—It appears from information received through the special agents of the postoffice department, that the great lottery octopus has its tentacles tightly fastened upon a large portion of territory within the United States, just south of the Canadian border, and that it is working the mails from the Canadian side with great success.

There have been general agencies for this cancer on the human family established in Canada, and letters are being sent into the United States under cover of plain envelopes, seeking agencies, and declaring that, so long as a correspondence between a citizen in the United States and an agent in Canada is conducted under a plain cover, that it will be a physical impossibility for the postoffice authorities to learn the nature of the correspondence, as "under the constitution of the United States there is the greatest privacy granted in the mails to its citizens," that "under no circumstances is a postoffice officer permitted to open a plain letter sent from a citizen of the United States." And furthermore the lottery agents assert that the Canadian lottery agents have the Dominion of Canada in their power, and that they are able to prevent the possibility of ordinary correspondence to or from Canada falling into the clutches of the United States postal detectives.

At the postoffice department the officials say that they see no way to get at this evil. Recently the chief of the Dominion postal inspectors visited Washington, at the request of Postmaster General Wagnamaker, when a consultation was had with a view to expressing the opinion, and prohibiting the use of the mails for illegitimate transactions between citizens of Canada and the United States. But there is no law in Canada to curb this evil, and it is likely to spread. However, the special agents of the postoffice department, operating along our northern boundary lines, have received special instructions to in this matter the closest possible attention, and if any letters emanating from this country relating to the lottery business are found in the mails to detect and arrest the senders.

AN EVIDENCE OF PROSPERITY.

Increasing Demand for Domestic—American Girls No Longer Serve as Cooks.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—"I want no better evidence of unusual prosperity throughout our country than the demands being made for domestic servants," said an official in the office of the superintendent of immigration. "It means two things: That a larger number of families are employing servants, and that women are finding better employment than in the past. The demand for housekeepers and all-around domestics, I could make a mint of money by finding employment for immigrants and importing them under contract. It is a very profitable business. We have a great many calls for domestics. Yes, servants are paid good wages from the start. The greatest demand is for women who can cook and wash, and who must be capable of doing all the work of a household. They are paid from $2 a week at the lowest, and are given lodging and board. Then they range upward in wages, reaching as high as $1 a day. Two dollars a week is the lowest, however. Why, even that is twice as much as they have been getting. It is not often that a domestic in Europe, anywhere, gets more than $1 a week, and she finds her own board and lodging."

"This is all the result of a general elevation of American women. Our poorer classes are getting in better clothing, and they are better educated. They are going to work. Instead, they are sent to school. Then the mechanics and laborers are doing well and marry our girls. Not half the proportion of American girls now work out as used to be hired for housework. It is one of the best signs of the times."

AS IN LIFE SO IN DEATH.

A Dying Man Refuses to Discontinue His Place of His Wealth.

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 5.—Mr. James McCormick, a miser, is dying in a dilapidated tenement house on North Second street. He cannot live long. Around his bedside stand his friends and two relatives vainly endeavoring the old man to tell where he has hidden his money. He is known to possess $7,000, which he is known to possess. McCormick is seventy years of age. For nearly two months he has eaten nothing, and his body is so weak that he cannot walk through the skin. He served through the war in the Fourth regiment, Missouri, and for his services he received a pension with back pay amounting to $8,000. Since that time he has spent nothing, and he has kept the money hidden. When he was sick $1,000 was found sewed inside of his underclothing.

PLENTY OF SEALS.

Looks as Though Somebody Had Been Exaggerating.

OTTAWA, Oct. 5.—Professor James Macoun, of the Canadian geological survey, who accompanied the British commissioners to Belting sea, writing to the government officials here, says the commissioners were astounded to note the plentifulness of the seals, having been told by the United States reports to suppose that the seals were almost exterminated. At St. Paul's island alone fully 500,000 seals were in sight. Mr. Macoun implies that the commissioners will suggest the setting apart far all time to come of half a dozen islands in Belting sea, exclusively for seal purposes, and that then there will be no danger of extermination.

The whippoorwill is in vogue in Kentucky. Two negroes were hanged on the gallows in Crittenden county for stealing turkeys.

Fatally Injured by a Wild Boar.

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky., Oct. 5.—A little four-year-old son of Robert Lindsay, of Muhlenberg county, was playing in a pasture when he was attacked by a vicious boar running at large, by which he was seriously if not fatally wounded, having a long and ugly gash torn in his back.

A TUGBOAT BOILER LETS GO.

Seven Persons Killed and Eight Injured in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—A boiler explosion aboard the steam tug C. W. Parker killed seven persons and seriously injured many others in the neighborhood of Archer avenue bridge, of the south branch of the river, about 4:30 Sunday afternoon. The tug, of C. W. Parker & Company, with three other tugs were engaged in attempting to tow the coal steamer H. S. Pickands out of the draw of the bridge when the explosion occurred. Three of the killed were employees of the tug, and their bodies have not yet been recovered.

The other persons killed were standing on the banks of the river, to which a number of spectators had been drawn to witness the removal of the steamer Pickands, which arrived Saturday from Buffalo with a cargo of coal. The vessel had run aground in the draw, and four tugs were putting forth every effort to move it, when one of them, the C. W. Parker, exploded.

The list of the killed and wounded as far as can be ascertained at this hour is as follows:

Killed.

James C. B. Carter, captain of the tug Parker.

John C. Moore, engineer of C. W. Parker.

Samuel Armstrong, of Maunakee, cook of C. W. Parker.

Unknown man killed by a fragment of boiler while standing at east end of Archer avenue bridge.

Mrs. Mary Rice, of Archer avenue.

Barbara Rice, her eighteen-year-old daughter.

Samuel Sawyers, laborer, of Ulm street.

Wounded.

Joseph Cullen, fireman of C. W. Parker; will probably die.

Henry Bell, deck-hand, badly scalded and leg paralyzed.

Charles Kirta, wounded by missiles.

Frank Wagner, arm broken.

Joseph Bonoracki, skull fractured.

George Juell, captain of the tug Van Schaeck, leg and back hurt.

Louis DeMass, deck-hand, Van Schaeck, back sprained.

James Cunningham, cook, Van Schaeck, scalp wounds.

BURIED ALIVE.

Six Miners Entombed in a Pennsylvania Colliery.

GLENN CARBON, Pa., Oct. 5.—Six men, John Lawler, John Pucelli, Michael Welch, Thomas Clancy, James Simmons and John Cusack, are entombed in Richardson's mine, and hope of rescuing them alive has been abandoned. They are cut off from the outside world by fifty feet of solid coal and rock which has fallen into the roadway leading from the entrance shaft to the chamber where they were working. The accident occurred late Saturday afternoon, and it is feared that the men already have died from lack of air.

CIRCULAR NO. 3.

The Motto the Same: "Farmers, Hold Your Wheat."

The Situation Taken Up Where It Was Dropped.

On a Basis of Complete and Reliable Reports the Claim is Made That There is Great Danger of a Country Exporting Too Much Wheat—The Price of Bread Will Rise and So Will Wages.

ST. PAUL, Oct. 1.—Another bull circular has been issued from the office of the State, the Farmers' Alliance organ, the third in the "hold your wheat" series. It urges the same course as before.

The circular takes up the wheat situation where the previous left it, and on the basis of complete and reliable reports from all parts of the country sets up the claim that there is great danger of this country exporting too much wheat.

It is to prevent and at the same time force up the price of wheat the new circular again reiterates and emphasizes, "Farmers hold your wheat."

It reviews the wheat situation at great length, insists that over-exporting is sure to result and argues for high prices for all that is exported. It then says:

"In short, the situation is this: We will have extraordinary high wheat prices here, with a moderate boom, if we hold our wheat. If we export it, we will have moderately high prices with an extraordinary boom, if we hold our wheat for high prices now. If we succeed in raising the price of cereals to the point the situation justifies the boom in business will be unprecedented, and the working man will have the benefit of it like everyone else."

"With wheat at $3 the cost of flour would be no more than $1.50, and as now, for the cost of manufacturing and packing would not be threefold, and as the bakers and grocers trouble would not increase at all, with the additional cost of wheat, a pound of bread would cost from five to eight cents if wheat rose from $1 to $3. Suppose a workingman's family need two loaves a day, his extra expense would be about six cents per day, if wheat should rise to a fabulous price, but a gain in wages would surely follow which would compensate him for the extra cost of bread."

Ignatius Donnelly advises farmers to hold their wheat thirty days longer. He has issued another circular to that effect.

DISCUSSED ANNEXATION.

A Very Interesting Meeting at Windsor, Ont., Breaks Up in Contention.

WINDSOR, Oct. 8.—A meeting was held here Thursday night to discuss annexation to the United States, under the auspices of the Continental club. F. J. Deatler, county warden, was elected chairman. Speeches were made by Mr. O'Brien, ex-member of parliament for South West, and Mr. L. A. White, a letter from Goldwin Smith was read. The question was fully discussed by the speakers. At the end of the speech by Mr. White, B. G. Davis, ex-alderman of Windsor, read a resolution favoring annexation, and when the chairman put the question the meeting broke up with confusion of cries for and against.

The assets of the concern are $100,000, liabilities about $75,000. The cause of the failure was poor business, heavy taxation, low wages and information as to the superior condition of the United States, derived almost entirely from relatives and friends who have already emigrated.

It is an immense open book of bronze supported by a pile of high granite cannon balls. The dedication will take place some time this fall, and Colonel J. B. The State supports a colored normal school, and it is located at Frankfort. Last year the attendance was 77, and the graduates 13. Considering the colored population of the State, this is not a large attendance.

The Madisonville Hustler is responsible for this item concerning matters at Frankfort:

"Mrs. Governor Brown has given to understand that when they call at the Mansion, either on business or pleasure that no liquor will be provided for their delirium."

Governor Brown is not so hard-hearted as his Republican opponents thought when he was on the stump. He granted sixteen pardons during his first month as Governor to prisoners in the Frankfort and Edgelyville penitentiaries. Most of them who received the favor were in ill-health and some in a dying condition.

We anticipated that some Kentucky papers would refer to our recent little whipping post escapade as a piece of barbarism that should be killed with the sledge hammer of civilization, but so far there has been no demand for a cessation of the war. Crittenden has declared against petty thieves. A number of papers have referred to the incident without expression of opinion.

Lieut. Gov. Jones, of New York, the man who wrote "Cleveland a letter, warning him 'hands off' in the fight for the Democratic nomination for Governor is out in a card declaring that if Flower is elected Governor, it means Flower for President. Mr. Jones is a great and wise man, but there are a few millions in the country greater and wiser than he. The party in New York is harmonious, Jones excepted.

It is gratifying to note that all of our mining enterprises did not die with the Princeton, Marion & Ohio River railroad. It was a sad day for Crittenden when Maj. Campbell died, because time has shown that no other man could manage the enterprises he had on foot, and his success while living, showed that he would have materialized these enterprises had he lived. Some man may yet be raised up to lead in the development of our resources.

The city of Covington held an election by secret ballot Saturday. The Democrats had a sweeping victory. Referring to the effect of the secret ballot the Newport Journal says:

"The ballot will compel the nomination of the very best men in the Democratic party and the Republican. Independent candidates there may be; but no matter what the name of the ticket, unless good men are on it the ticket will go down, in municipal elections for a certainty."

The Covington Commonwealth wants the state to have an inspector of whiskey as well as a tobacco inspector. It says:

"This is of even more importance, for tobacco is not drugged like whiskey. The compounders and dealers are administering slow poison to the people daily, and swindling them with fake brands, and if there is any change called for at all, it should be made right here, where there is undoubtedly a crying need for protection from practices that are altogether evil."

There is a great deal more truth than speculation in these words. The long effort to abolish the use of liquor as a beverage has been a poor success at best, and its ultimate triumph is in a far distant day, when calculated by even its most sanguine votaries, and it would be humane to diminish the amount of suffering by curtailing the amount of poison sold under the name of whiskey.

Col. Oscar Turner's Candidacy. The Louisville Commercial says: "If Col. Oscar Turner begins farming operations in Ballard county next spring, the signs are sure that he will make the race for congress in the First district, although a resident of Jefferson county. Keep an eye on the 'old bull of Ballard' and about June 1st he will be seen on his Ballard farm attire in a hickory shirt and a pitched pair of pants 'bossin' round and cussin'." In August he will be found in pretty much the same garb making speeches over the district. Things though have changed with the old bolter since Betty died. He has not the hold on the farmers that he once had, besides several henchmen, one of whom was noted for not being able to speak five words without saying 'Turner, are no more.'"

Governor Campbell's opponents in Ohio are evidently hard pressed for campaign material, and have the choice of retracting a story they have published or defending a libel suit. The Commercial Gazette publishes from a New York paper a statement that Campbell is in debt $50,000 which was incurred by gambling in stocks, and that he owes Senator Brice $10,000. Brice telegraphs that it is a lie; Campbell has given the Commercial Gazette the choice of retracting or going into court, and has instructed his New York lawyer to draw a suit against the New York paper unless it retracts. With such a fertile field as the tariff, its strange that McKinley and his friends can not rely upon their boasted advantage in its cultivation for success.

Adj. Gen. Gross may not have to face the belching cannon or dance to the music of smaller fire arms in serving the State in his official capacity as commander of our militia, nevertheless he is already in a battle that shows a superior generalship in the eyes of the taxpayers. A bill of expenses for a recent encampment of some of the citizen-soldiers was brought to the Gen. Gross for endorsement; the bill called for $1178.63; instead of endorsing the officer out down to $2,000. Among the items disallowed were ice cream, pears, bananas, candies, etc. Now it is shameful that the mighty warriors must go without these substantial, muscle-producing bills of fare, but the soldier's life is one of hardship and privations, ours must learn this sooner or later. There is no help for it in this case, unless the school teachers will agree to credit the state for their salary, so that the available cash in the treasury may be used to purchase only for the soldiers. The question should be brought up at the next Teachers Meeting. While it deserves to be tested on its own merits, the discussion would incidentally show the amount of patriotism the teacher has, it will show whether he prefers to fill his own pocket with the filthy dollar, or give the patriotic stomach of the soldier the fight-producing product of the confederator.

The Paducah Standard reports that Marion has gone dry. Not much, quart measures are still shedding copious showers and will continue to do so until Circuit Court meets in December, any way.

The revival of the whipping-post in Kentucky is not pleasant to think of, and it cannot last. The colored colonels of Kentucky have a high standing all over this country for dignity and courage, and the news that one of them has been legally whipped on his bare back or merely manacled to a turkey in receipt of a whipping is a disgrace to the confidence of things. No known citizen could be whipped, and a Kentucky colonel, white or black, is certainly the equal of any Roman citizen who ever trusted in Caesar's triumphs. St. Louis Republic.

Shot May Prove Fatal. Cadiz, Ky., Oct. 5.—Steven Austin, candidate for circuit court clerk of this county, and John Kenney, a prospective candidate for Sheriff, met at Waddling's store, known as Wring to office, Saturday afternoon, and for a few words from Austin to Kenney, they drew their pistols and commenced firing. Each emptied his pistol. Kenney escaped unhurt. One shot in Austin's side may prove fatal.

MORMON MISSIONARIES.

Seven of Joseph Smith's Followers Hold A Conference at Oakland Church.

Last week the PRESS learned that a meeting of Mormon preachers was to be held at Oakland, and a reporter was dispatched to that place to learn something of these wanderers and of their work.

Oakland is a neat little frame church house about seven miles east of Marion. It was built by the Universalist some sixteen years ago, at a time the builders became somewhat disorganized, and now the doors are open to whosoever sect that chooses to use it properly for the worship of God. This fact probably drew the Mormon preachers to friendly portals for the purpose of talking over the effect of their labors in Kentucky and Tennessee. The business meeting Saturday was attended by seven of these missionaries, and as they evidently prefer to be alone on that occasion, they were not intruded upon.

They are all from Utah and have traveled and preaching over Kentucky and Tennessee. Wherever they find the people friendly enough to listen, they preach, and whenever they find that a community prefers "their room to their company" they "fold their tent like Arabs and as quietly steal away." It soon became noisy abroad in the neighborhood that these itinerants would preach on Sunday, accordingly a large gathering to hear them. Three discourses were made by as many discourses, each more or less along the same line, and permit the writer to say that they said some mighty good things. They took no text from the Bible, but their discourses were not will nor scattering, but were confined mainly to three things, namely Faith, Repentance and Baptism.

On the first, faith, the say "the principle of faith is the moving cause of all action. A man must have faith to believe that God will answer his prayers before he will offer them. It requires faith to accomplish any given work to which we set our hands."

On repentance they preach this: "Repentance we believe to be sorrow for and turning from sin; not meaning and groaning over the past and continue the same way of living, but be honest, quit lying, drinking, swearing, stealing and be virtuous, charitable, forgiving, and serve God in spirit and in truth—this is repentance."

On baptism they hold: The necessity for baptism was plainly taught by our Savior and the apostles. Comparatively speaking, it stood in the same light to the kingdom of God that the oath of allegiance stands to any temporal government." The congregation listened to these things patiently and not with disapproval, but wanted to hear about some other doctrines of the " Latter day Saints, that of a plurality of wives, for instance. One of the preachers, who appeared to be higher in ecclesiastical authority than the others, seemed to anticipate our wants, and he took the stand and said that they used to teach polygamy, allowing a man to have more than one wife, if he was able to support more than one, but now as the laws of the country forbid it, they no longer taught nor practiced it, as they believed in being subservient to the laws of the country in which they lived.

They thanked the congregation for its attention, and, leaving a sharp sprinkling of their literature behind, they departed for other fields.

Obituary.

Miss Nellie Duke (Ky.) resided at her home near Mari n, Ky., Friday evening, Sept. 18, 1891, after a protracted illness. She was the daughter of M. B. and Anna H. Haynes, and was born April 15, 1862.

Her death was not unexpected by her friends. For more than two years her life was one of patient suffering, battling against the monster disease that, baffling like the best medical aid, the kind attention of friends and the hopes and tears of loved ones, finally ended her life; and the gentle spirit, which alone can defy death and disease, severing the frail bonds which held it here, took its flight to a better world than this.

Nellie was a general favorite. Gifted by nature with a lively disposition, amiable and intelligent, she won the hearts of many friends, and those who knew her best loved her most. Cheerful in manners, bright in intellect, gifted in conversation, she was the light of the social circle and the home fireside. But she is gone; and, in going, leaves many sorrowing friends and a sad and lonely home.

When scarcely more than a child, meekly obeying the Divine command to "seek first the kingdom of heaven" she gave her young heart to the Saviour, joining the Methodist church under the ministry of Rev. J. D. Crenshaw. True to her professions, her short life was a truly christian one, having with it, she said even in the most trying hours of her affliction, doubted the Saviour's love or her own acceptance. Her death, like her life, was a triumph of the Christian's faith. The world, with all its prospects was given up; every earthly ambition and every loving heart was surrendered, and she was resigned to go. "I am only waiting," she said, "for the Saviour's call."

"A little while," she often quoted, "The Saviour then will come, And lead his loving, waiting child Into his blessed home."

And the call was given. The summons came. And it was to give her up—she who had been so gentle, so loving, so kind. But the sad hour came, and a dark one it was to her weeping friends. But not to her. "There's nothing dark," she said. "All was peace, serenity, hope, triumph. She remained conscious to the last; and while at the gateway between two worlds, with the light of immortality ever then shining on her, she would endeavor to point out to our blinded eyes hovering forms from the other shore, who, like ourselves, had gathered around the bedside of the expiring loved one. It was soon over. The icy hand was laid gently on her and she fell asleep. She was dead. The gentle spirit had flown with its heavenly attendants to the house not made with hands.

The remains were taken to Hurricane the next day for burial. A large number of her friends, relatives and associates followed sorrowfully to the grave. The funeral sermon, a touching discourse on the christian's reward, was preached by Rev. R. S. Clark, after which kind hands laid her away.

So, dear Nellie, our sweet angel sister, sleep on. We shall meet again. Death can not part us forever, nor the grave chill our love. In that pure world, where happy angels dwell, we shall meet again in the grand by and by.

Yes, Nellie is gone, "She passed from us."

To dwell upon a fairer shore," Crowned with the Saviour's jewels there, She'll live forever more.

HER BROTHER.

FILLING SILOS. A Plan Which Does Away with Tramping the Silage.

Not only does the silo and the material put into it undergo a great change within a few years, but the methods of filling the silo have departed from the original idea. In many sections of the country the excessive tramping of the silage as it is placed in the pit is not followed except in extreme cases. A very general plan now does away with all tramping except a very little along the walls to overcome the friction of the silage against the walls. Some do not practice even this to any great extent. The silage as it comes from the carrier is usually allowed to drop in the center of the pit, and is then tramped about the pit by a man whose business it is to keep the silage level and the sides tramped.

A far better way, says "The Southern Farm," is to lay two sentinels across the top of the silo, these feet apart, as is illustrated in the accompanying cut. On these lay some short boards so as to make a platform at least three and a half feet square. As the silage falls upon this table it quickly forms a pyramid and is isolated to about every part of the silo and needs very little after attention. An hour during the day is about all the labor needed in a 15 by 10 foot silo. The silage will be much the highest at the walls, and this can be kept apart, as is illustrated in the accompanying cut. On these lay some short boards so as to make a platform at least three and a half feet square. As the silage falls upon this table it quickly forms a pyramid and is isolated to about every part of the silo and needs very little after attention.

The authority quoted says: "This is a great labor saver, and in our silos not a bushel has been lost in corners or sides in two winters with this plan of self scattering and packing, and it has saved the expense of one man, save the last day, when the silage is to be cut. The platforms did not longer give the falling silage a chance to scatter sufficiently. Those who practice the no-tramping plan are wholly in favor of it, and it is rare that one hears of anything but success with it, while those who advocate much tramping in corners and sides do have more or less trouble with mold and loss of silage. The center of a pit, where it is not trampled, always keeps. If the walls are perfect why should not the sides and corners keep as well introduced as does the center? It will if the walls are air proof."

The Moore-Walker Nuptials.
Wednesday evening Oct. 7, the Methodist church was the scene of the happy consummation of one of these events which unite two hearts and two lives as one. To make the surroundings partake of the cheerfulness of the occasion, the church was beautifully decorated with flowers and evergreens by the young friends of the happy couple. Pretty wreaths of flowers and graceful trolleys of evergreens met the eye on every hand. At half past seven the organ pealed forth the wedding march, as the party entered and passed slowly up the aisle to the altar, and there amidst the grotto of roses the three couples turned and faced the large audience. On the right were Mr. E. T. Donakey and Miss Mattie Kevil, on the left Mr. H. V. Stone and Miss Grace Perkins, in the center were the contracting parties, Mr. David B. Moore and Miss Kate D. Walker, the cynosure of all eyes. Just as the note of the organ died away, Rev. S. K. Breeding stood in front of the couple, and with a beautiful ceremony, plighted the vows that are to bind them through life, and they passed from the house bearing with them the benedictions of their hundreds of friends. Miss Walker, now Mrs. Moore, is the daughter of Mr. R. N. Walker, a well known citizen. Mr. Moore is the son of County Judge J. A.
